

Social Action Hubs

Social Action Hubs are local rooted organisations with community organising expertise. They all offer one-day courses and some offer Qualification courses. They can also offer direct support from an experienced community organiser after training to put your learning into practice.

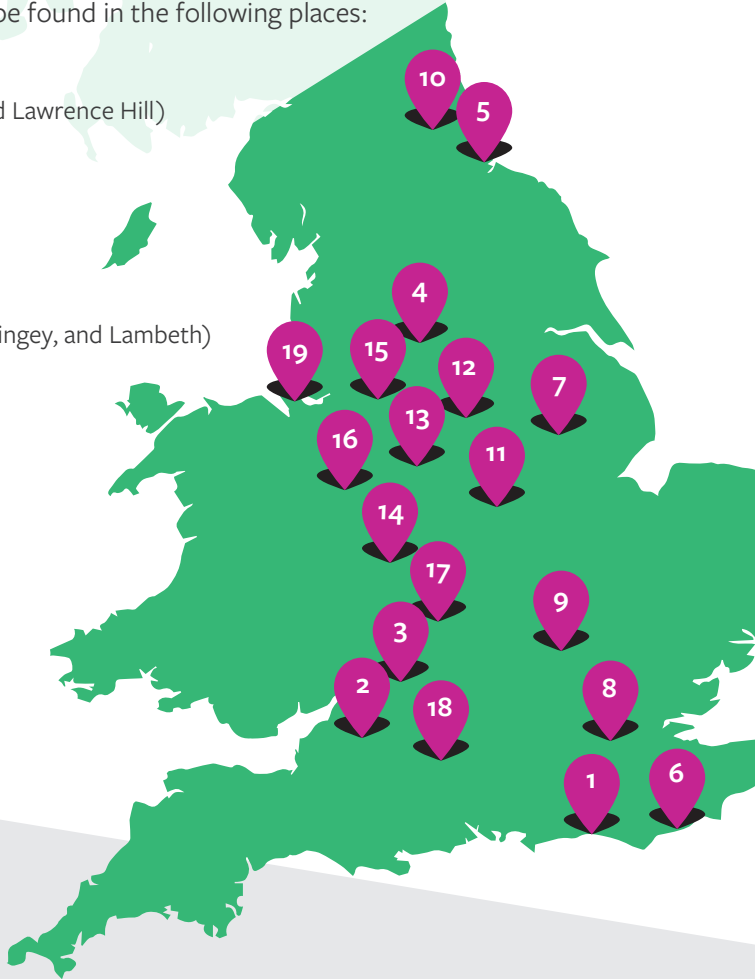

Social Action Hubs promote the principles, methods, and values of community organising. They use a community organising approach to reach out, galvanise and support people to build relationships and solidarity, engage in democracy and community life and work for justice.

If there isn't a Social Action Hub near you, we can work with you to develop a community organising approach in your area. This could include:

- implementing a community organising programme with a local organisation with the ambition of them becoming a Social Action Hub
- supporting a group of residents to participate in a community organising training programme
- appointing a community organiser to work with your communities
